AMERICAN NEWS.

AN ENTRANCE EFFECTED INTO THE DUNBAR MINE.

A Train Goes off a Precipice on the Northern Pacific—An Eventful Business Life—The State of Affairs in Oklahoma Deplorable—Bancroft's Health.

DUNBAR, July 2.—At 4 o'clock this morning the opening into Farm Hill mine was completed and the air tested and found to be 20 per cent. black damp. This, in the estimation of Supt. Hill is conclusive evidence that none of miners will be found alive. At 4:15 a.m. all the rescuing party came out and the huge fans were started to drive out the foul air from the mine to make further explorations possible. The mine inspectors fear another explosion will occur when the mine gas is driven down to where the fire is yet burning. At 9 o'clock the fans were slowed down and twenty selected volunteers entered for the purpose of determining the fate of their fellows. It will be late in the day before the rescuing party is heard from. Thirty coffins have been placed within the entry to the mine. Every preparation is made for any emergency that may arise. Outside on the hillsides surrounding the pit crowds of men, women and children are assembled waiting to hear the final word. Rain is falling in torrents and the watchers are thoroughly drenched.

Serious Accident on Northern Pacific.

HELENA, Mont., July 2.—A serious wreck occurred on the Northern Pacific Railroad yesterday afternoon. No. 1 was nearing Brummond, fifty miles west of this city, when two sleepers were thrown down a 40-foot embankment. Passengers on the first car were thrown violently from their seats and huddled into a mass, while those in the second car fared but little better. Miss May Carson, of Fort Sherman, was injured so badly that she died within an hour. A dozen others were injured, the most seriously hurt being A. M. Otto, Nothern Pacific express auditor, who had his arm broken and was badly bruised; Mrs. G. D. Howe, Faribult, Minn., shoulder hurt; Annie Benson, Waterville, Wn., shoulders injured; James Slocum, Portland, bruised body; Mrs. Jas. Slocum, arms and shoulders injured; Mrs. John Lalley, New York, face and head cut; Mrs. A. Sine, Kingston, Ont., internal injuries, her child being also injured; S. K. Sissley, Port Townsend, head hurt; Elijah Smith, New York, hands cut and shoulder hurt; W. T. Patch, Minneapolis, arms hurt; Mrs. W. L. Patch, face, head and arms lacerated. The sleepers were badly smashed. Several of the wounded are dangerously hurt but physicians say no more deaths will result.

An Eventful Life.

NEW YORK, July 2.—Wm. Elliott, for whom the noted Washington hostelry the Elliott House was named, died today at the West Point Hotel, West Point. The cause of his death was Bright's disease. Mr. Elliott had an eventful business career. By trade he was a jeweler. Giving up the jewelry business he went into the street railway and built the Sixth avenue railway in this city. For a time he was president of the company. He owned the Elliott House during the war, selling out soon after the close of that struggle. After that he was engaged in various schemes. For a long time he ran a livery stable. This he sold three years ago and since then has not been engaged in active business.

A Scorched Country.

TOPEKA, July 2.—Hon. J. W. Admire, receiver of the land office at Kingfisher, Oklahoma, came up from the territory last evening, and reports affairs there to be in a deplorable condition. He said yesterday was one of the hottest days of the season. It was close and the heat intense. The thermometer, he said, was 100. Worse, however, than anything else no rain has fallen for fifteen days and it is very dry. Vegetation is looking bad, and if this keeps on much longer the prairies will burn off by spontaneous combustion. The people are getting discouraged already, and if the crops fail in this country this year the result will be not only an irreparable damage, but be succeeded by a great deal of suffering. There is scarcely a locality in the United States where poor people predominate as largely as they do in Oklahoma.

The Historian Bancroft.

BOSTON, July 2.—Reliable private information received from Newport, R.I., states that Geo. Bancroft, the historian is as well as is expected of a man of his age. He takes short walks every pleasant day. His constant companion is Absalom Taylor, the professional nurse of Boston.

Term of Apprenticeship.

NEW YORK, July 2.—The whole of the forenoon's session of the Boiler Makers' Convention was devoted to a discussion of the apprentice question. It was finally decided that apprentices serve a term of six months' probation, and three and a half years as apprentices. After that he must be two years a journeyman, after which he may be ranked as a master workman.

News From Alaska.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 30.—By the arrival of the Berthe from Karluk, late news is at 2nd from Alaska. The canneries are all running. The pack this season will be between 40,000 and 50,000 cases to each cannery.

It is reported that the Hope, Corinthian and J. V. Peters are in the north. The first two are pack vessels and the latter belongs to the Pacific Steam Whaling Co.

Very few seals were seen, coming down, and no illegal sealers are expected.

The Lottery Sure to Win.

NEW ORLEANS, La., June 30.—A compromise has been reached in the lottery fight. The House bill will be passed by the Senate in the form of a constitutional amendment to be voted on at the next state election, but a primary election will be held before, at which only whites shall vote on the question of accepting or rejecting the lottery proposition. If the vote is against the lottery the company will withdraw the offer and leave the state when the charter expires.

Father Mollinger Dying.

PITTSBURG, June 30.—Rev. Father Mollinger, the faith-curist, whose reputation extends throughout the whole United States, is dying. He attended 10,000 people on St. Anthony's day, but the strain was too much and broke him down. He is said to be worth nearly $10,000,000.

Rails for Great Northern.

WHATCOM, June 30.—The ship Moody is here from New York with 3,000 tons of fifty-six pound steel rails for the Great Northern road north to New Westminster.

SUNDAY SCHOOLS PICNIC.

A Large Crowd Visit Langford Plains to Celebrate Dominion Day.

This was the great event of the day—greatest because so many were interested in it, and because of the number present and the genuine enjoyment it afforded to the young people. The regular 8:20 train was crowded by the parents and children of the Pandora street Methodist, First Presbyterian and the Gorge road churches, who were on their way to Langford Plains to enjoy their annual picnic. Trains were running every hour during the day, and were each time filled by old and young of all denominations. Quite a number of Nanaimo's citizens also stopped off coming into the city during the evening. Fully 2000 people were on the ground at noon, and the hundreds of delightfully shady copses on the large plains were forthwith preempted by family parties for luncheon purposes. A programme of sports for the young people, superintended by Messrs. Shakespeare and Johnson, and including egg races and races of all kinds, was successfully carried out, prizes being offered to the winners. The weather was as delightful as it could be, and the plain was as pretty a scene as could be wished for. It was 9 o'clock before the last train returned to the city, and even it was well filled by those who had gone out for a long day's pleasure.

The prizes in the several competitions, with the exception of the egg and ladle races, were won as follows:

HOME AND FOREIGN.

GERMANY'S STAND ON THE M'KINLAY BILL.

A Mother and Two Children Poisoned by Mussels—The Panic at Buenos Ayres—Bradstreets Reports a Decrease of Failures in the Dominion, etc.

NEW YORK, July 2.—The Herald's Washington special says: A dispatch from Berlin to-day says a semi-official denial is made of the statement that the powers of continental Europe, headed by Germany, had agreed to establish mutual repressive tariffs against American imports if the McKinlay bill become law. The dispatch concludes: "Germany has taken no steps to counteract the McKinlay bill." The fact, however, remains the same, that Germany is one of the powers referred to by Count Kalnoky in his recent answer to an interrogatory. The Austrian premier said: "I'm not in a position to know what the law will be if it is passed by Congress. All I can say at present is that as there are other European powers more seriously affected than we are, we have accepted a proposition to take concerted action. We have instructed our minister in America to pay the closest attention to this matter. Of course, until the tariff bill actually passes it is impossible for European countries to determine how to act; but it will be of interest to know just now that the continental countries and England are named in the confidential circular just received here, which anticipates the probable effect of a reciprocity policy outlined by Mr. Blaine, and that this scheme is, if anything, more objectionable to Germany, France and England than the prohibitory features of the McKinlay bill.

European powers now practically control the trade with Central and South American countries, and the proposition to take it away from them and divert it to the United States, has increased the interest in the fate of the amendment proposed by Senator Hale. Germany has the biggest share of the control of Central American trade, and doesn't intend to see it diminished if it is possible to hold it. Instructions have been given to ministers of European powers in Washington to pay particular attention to the progress of tariff legislation, which includes the possibility of the adoption of reciprocity features recommended by the President. In regard to the additional duty recently put upon American flour by the Spanish government, dispatches from Havana report it to be 25 per cent. on the present duty of $4.52 per hundred kilograms which makes the rate almost prohibitory. The second section of the Spanish legation, Senor Sagrario, said in regard to the matter. Our government has increased the rate of duty on American flour, but we understand the advance is only 25 per cent. of the present rate. This is not such a radical increase, and it must be remembered that a large part of our flour is milled out of American wheat, on which the rate of duty is only $3.92 per hundred kilograms. The American tariff is much higher than ours probably it will average 50 per cent. higher than the Spanish tariff and this increase does not apply especially to American flour but to that of all other countries

Poisonous Mussels.

DUBLIN, July 2.—James O'Connor, one of the editors of United Ireland, returned about 9 o'clock to his home at Monktown, near here, and found his wife and three children suffering from the effects of eating poisonous mussels, gathered by them on the shore during the day. Physicians were hastily called in and exerted every effort to relieve the sufferers. Despite their efforts, however, all four died within an hour.

The Panic in Buenos Ayres.

BUENOS AYRES, July 2.—The sale of the Western Railway was consummated by the payment of the final balance of £200,000 English purchase money. This action has resulted in checking the panic in the gold market.

BUSINESS FAILURES.

Bradstreets Report on Failures in Canada and United States.

An Upright and Straightforward Public Servant's Sudden Death.

OTTAWA, July 2.—John Page, chief engineer of canals, became unconscious while sitting in his chair in his office in railways and canals this forenoon, and before medical aid reached he expired. Mr. Page, who was 75 years of age, is an old employee of the Government, well known to all public contractors of Canada, being about 45 years in the service. He was acknowledged by all to be, in addition to his great abilities, an upright and straightforward man. His great works were the new Welland Canal, with the squadoni and the Lachine Canal.

The late John Page was born in Scotland in 1815. He served under the late Robt Stevenson as engineer of the Northern Light-house Board and came to the United States in 1838, where he was engaged on the Erie canal until 1842, when he entered the service of the Canadian Government. He was appointed chief engineer of the department in 1883, and declined the deputy ministership of Public Works in 1888.

The German Emperor has commuted before him for investigation a young negro prisoner known as Prince Bell from the Cameroons Country, West Africa, who had been sent to Bremen to learn the trade of a carpenter, and who is alleged to have joined a gang of Socialists and Anarchists. If Bell should turn out to be really a Socialist, he will not be allowed to return to the Cameroons, for fear of corrupting the natives.

CHAPTER XVI.

IN WHICH A CROWD OF DISSATISFIED PEOPLE BREAK INTO THE CELL OF J. T. MASTON.

After this public notice there was nothing left but to wait for the coming danger or to run away to the neutral lines, where there would be no danger. The threatened people were, in general, divided into two classes—"the people who would be suffocated and those who would be drowned." This communication roused many different suggestions, which, however, all turned into the strongest and most violent protestations against the scheme and schemers. Among those who would suffocate were the Americans in the United States, the Europeans of France, England, Spain, etc. Even the prospect of annexing territories now at the bottom of the ocean was not sufficient to make them quietly accept these changes. Paris, carried towards the new Pole a distance about equal to that which separates it from the old one, would gain nothing by it. It would have a continued spring, it is true, but it would lose considerable air. And this was not satisfactory to the Parisians, who like to have as much air as possible, and boulevard property and cafes went begging. Among those who would be drowned were the inhabitants of South America, of Australia, Canada, India, Zealand, etc. Great Britain would suffer the loss of her richest colonies, which Barbicane & Co. would take away from her through their separation. Evidently the Gulf of Mexico would constitute a vast kingdom of the Antilles, of which the Yankees and the Mexicans would claim possession by the principles of the Monroe doctrine. The islands of the Philippines, Celebes and the water around them would leave vast territories of which the English and Spanish people could take possession. It was a vain compensation. It did not at all balance the loss due to the terrible flood.

If under the new oceans only Samoyedeux, Lapons, of Siberia, Fuegans, Patagonians—even Tartars, Chinese, Japanese or a few Argentines—would suffer and be lost, perhaps the civilized powers would have accepted this sacrifice complacently. But too many powers took part in the great catastrophe not to raise a torrent of protest.

And what especially concerned Europe was, that although the central part of it would be nearly intact, it would be raised in the west and lowered in the east, half suffocated on one side and half drowned on the other. This was not very acceptable. The Mediterranean Sea would be almost emptied, and this would not be very agreeable to the Frenchmen, Italians, Spaniards, Greeks, Turks and Egyptians, which, by their situation on the coast, had indisputable rights in ocean travel. And then, what good would be the Suez canal, which would be saved by its position on the neutral line? But what use could be made of this immense work of Lesseps when there was no longer the Mediterranean on one side of the isthmus and the Red Sea on the other, at least within any reasonable distance of it?

No, never never would England consent to see Gibraltar, Malta and Cyprus transformed into mountain-tops, lost in the clouds, so that its men-of-war could no longer approach them. No, she would not be satisfied with the possession of some of the territory which would be gained from the Atlantic Ocean. Major Donellan had, however, prepared already to return to Europe to secure his rights on this new territory in case the operation of Barbicane & Co. should succeed. It is seen how protests came from all parts of the world, even from States where the changes would be imperceptible, because their people were interested in some other direction more or less.

These protestations became more and more violent after the arrival of the cablegram from Zanzibar which indicated the point of the shooting, and which it was found necessary to publish the above report to explain. President Barbicane and Captain Nicholl, as well as J. T. Maston, were put under the ban of humanity and declared outlaws. But what a business all this created for the newspapers. What sales they had, and how the circulations ran up; how on many occasions they were forced to print extra editions. It is perhaps the first time in journalistic history that they were all united with each other, as they generally quarrel incessantly. This was not a European or American affair: it was an affair which concerned the whole world. It was like a bomb falling into a powder magazine.

In regard to Maston, it looked as if his last hour had come. A rabid crowd pushed into his prison on the evening of September 17 with the intention of lynching him, and the jailer did not put any obstacles in their way. They rushed along the corridor, but the cell of J. T. Maston was empty. Mrs. Evangelina Scorbitt had come to his help with a heavy purse of gold, and he had made his escape. The jailer had been bribed by an amount of money on which he could live the rest of his life without working. It is remembered that Baltimore, Washington, New York and many of the principal cities of America were on the line of those parts which would be raised and which would still have enough air for the daily consumption of their inhabitants.

J. T. Maston had gained a quite ready-prepared and safe place from the rear-guard party of [illegible], and to this great [illegible] the devotion of a loving woman. There were only four days to wait, four days only before the gigantic operation of Barbicane & Co. would be accomplished. The public notice had been read far and wide and had created as much public excitement as such a momentous document only could. If there were at the beginning a few skeptics on the subject, there were none at present. The various governments had notified in haste those of their provinces which would be raised into the air and those, a much larger number, the territory of which would be overrun with water. In consequence of this advice sent by telegraph over the five continents of the world an emigration began such as had never been seen before. Every race was represented, white, black, brown, yellow, etc., in one chromatic procession. Unhappily, time was wanting for all to secure safety. The hours were now counted. A few months' notice would be required for the Chinese to leave China, the Australians Australia, the Siberians Siberia. In some instances the danger was a local one as soon as the place of the shooting was known, so the fright became less general. Some provinces and even some States began to feel easy again. In a word, except in the regions directly threatened, there was only felt an apprehension of the terrible shock. And during all this time Alcide Pierdeux was saying to himself: "How in the wide world can President Barbicane make a cannon a million times larger than that of twenty-seven centimeters? This Maston, I would like very much to meet him—to have with him a talk upon this subject. This does not agree with any thing sensible; it is too enormous and improbable."

Be this as it may, the failure of the operation was the only hope which was left for certain parts of the world to escape more terrible destruction.

LONDON'S NEW TOWER.

It Is to Be Just Twice as High as the Eiffel Structure.

When the Eiffel Tower, at the Paris Exposition, was demonstrated to an immense success, both physically and financially, London began to talk about building a rival structure, 2,000 feet high, and then New York, with characteristic emulation, began to talk of building one 3,000 feet high. The New York project ended in talk, which was also characteristic, but the London scheme is making progress and the tower is in a fair way to be built.

It is under the management of Sir Edward Watkin, who is famous as the projector of a tunnel under the English Channel, which his bold compatriots are afraid to build, lest it might admit a foreign foe, and his energy is sufficient guarantee that the tower will be erected as soon as possible. It is to stand on the Thames embankment, in a fashionable part of London, and as it is to be twice as high as the Eiffel Tower, it is, of course, expected to be twice as great an attraction.

There is no doubt that it will be, if not because of its height, then because of its unique character. It can scarcely fail to be something novel and curious in the way of architecture, for no less than 248 architects and engineers are preparing designs for it, and it will be very singular if something new and extraordinary shall not be evolved from so great a number of brains trained in the devising of new forms and combinations.

There are, however, great difficulties in the way of a variety of designs. The necessities of the situation forbid fantastic architecture and elaborate ornamentation. When M. Eiffel built his tower he found himself restricted to the simplest of all shapes—a light structure of open iron work, which the wind could blow through without overturning, and which would not fall down of its own weight. Still, the builders of the Tower of Babel had a radically different design, and were getting on very well with it when stopped by circumstances over which they had no control; so perhaps the 248 artists will evolve a design quite as feasible as M. Eiffel's and a great deal prettier.

The London tower is apropos of nothing in particular. It is simply a business speculation, like a cyclorama or a new theater. There are enough sight-seers in London every day to make it profitable if it becomes a popular fad, and as the idea has not yet lost its novelty there seems to be no good reason why a visit to London hereafter should be considered complete without a visit to the Watkin Tower.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Poetic Sentiment.

To apply the poetic words "a medicine that's able to breathe life into a stone" to B. B. B. savors of exaggeration, but considering its countless cures and wonderful work even exaggeration seems justifiable if it convinces those who hesitate to try B. B. B. and be cured.

What is lime juice? This question is rendered necessary by the prominent attention Lime Juice is attracting as the best temperance beverage. FEEDING ON CORPSES.

Kwogutles, or Human Ogres of British Columbia.

Among the interesting foreign miscellany reports the following has been forwarded to Rome: In the northern region of British Columbia an agent of the Canadian Government has discovered some Indian tribes addicted to cannibalism from religious sentiment. These Indians, who are called Tsinoglaxams or Kwogutles, believe in a spirit called Hamadtse, which inhabits the mountains, nourishing itself solely on human flesh. Many years ago one of these tribes betook themselves to these mountains, where they discovered the famous spirit, and henceforth they alone became cannibals, and took the name of Hamadtses. The families belonging to the tribe alone have the right to betake themselves to the woods and there give themselves to these inhuman feasts on the flesh of their fellow-beings. The sole object of the Hamadtses is to show themselves different from other men and that they are harmed neither by what they eat nor by their sufferings.

At the beginning they killed a servant and a slave whom the Hamadtses devoured in the presence of a general assembly of the other Indians. But at the present day, being afraid of killing men especially for their banquets, the Hamadtses content themselves with exhuming some recently buried bodies. After this revolting feast they are obliged to abstain from eating for several days, and during this time they are only allowed to drink warm water. These monstrous cannibals, in order to be admitted to such feasts, are bound to first submit to particular ceremonies, among which, the initiated are obliged to begin by biting whomever they come across, except women, and then to eat the flesh they have torn away with their teeth from, for instance, the nose, ears, etc., and in this way to accustom themselves gradually to devour without repugnance human flesh. With the father of the initiated, however, rests the obligation of compensating in some way the victim of their voracity.

At present the Kwogutles Indians are rare who have not been initiated in these mysteries; for which reason they are nearly all cannibals.—Catholic News.

The Ancient "Skinners'" Company.

A fortnight ago at a great dinner of the Skinners' Company the usual curious formalities were observed. A Mr. Cockayne presented ages ago three gilt cocks to this company (supposed, together with the range of sound of Bow bells, to have some connection with the word "Cockney"). These cocks were during dinner carried round the table in procession, the first followed by an officer bearing a cap of finest fur. Then the question was solemnly propounded—"Whom will this cap fit?" First it was tried on the head of Mr. Justice Denman, but it was not for him. Then it was placed on the head of Lord Justice Bowen, for whom the responsible officer declared it was not intended. Then the time-honored comedy was concluded by trying it on the head of Mr. S. Temp, the new Master of the Skinners' Company. Amid cheers the fit was declared to be perfect, and this gentleman has, it is understood, the merit of belonging to the trade. On this matter no charter is more strict than the most recent one of the Skinners, which, dated in the fourth year of James 1st, provides that the master and wardens of the said guild should be chosen from such of the freemen as have used and professed the mystery and art of a skinner, and not from any others.

Tascott's Capture Denied.

CHICAGO, June 28.—A. J. Stone, son-in-law of the late A. J. Snell, said tonight that he knew nothing of the reported arrest of Tascott. He has had charge, heretofore of all searching parties. The police here know nothing of any capture.

A Long Case Ending.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 30.—Attorney Highton has finished the closing argument in the Blythe will case, having spoken four days in behalf of Alice, the alleged widow of Thomas Blythe, the millionaire. The trial of the great case began July 15, 1889, and was to decide the rights of numerous contestants of the will of the deceased, who left an estate worth $15,000,000 to an alleged illegitimate daughter, Florence. Two hundred and eight witnesses were examined and the depositions of 121 other persons were read. The argument of the case opened April 10.

A Warning.

MR. EDITOR.—It is a well-known fact that the majority of people are inclined to look upon a cold in the head as a matter of little importance—involving at the most only a temporary inconvenience. No more disastrous mistake was ever made. The neglected cold in the head is the source of the catarrhal affections with which about seven-tenths of the people of this country are afflicted, and catarrh itself is too often the preliminary stages to consumption and death. The symptoms of catarrh are manifold, but among them may be mentioned, offensive breath; dull, oppressive headache; offensive droppings from the nostrils into the throat and bronchial tubes; deafness or partial deafness; constant hawking and spitting; weak and watery eyes; a hacking cough and feeling of general debility; ringing in the ears and frequent dizziness. These are but a few of the more general symptoms, and those who experience them should lose no time in applying a remedy. Delays are proverbially dangerous, and in the case of this so prevalent disease may lead to death. We offer Nasal Balm to the public as a positive cure for cold in the head and for catarrh in all its forms and stages. Nasal Balm has been tested in thousands of cases, and the testimonials in our possession prove that it is all we claim for it. It has cured other sufferers, it will cure you. It is easy to use, pleasant and agreeable and does not require douching, or any puttering instrument to apply it. Give it a trial and be convinced of its great efficacy. Sold by all dealers or sent post free on receipt of price 50c. for small or $1 for large size bottle by addressing Fulford & Co., Brockville, Ont. daw

What's the Reason?

The causes of summer complaint, diarrhœa, dysentery, cholera morbus, etc., are the excessive heat, coming great from other exertion, indigestible food and sudden chill. Dr. Fowler's Wild Strawberry is an infallible and prompt cure for all bowel complaints from whatever cause.

A New Study for Girls.

I have discovered a new profession in Washington. It is a branch of the Delsarte science, but promises to have many more followers. Among a number of literary and social advertisements there appears this announcement, appended to which is the name of a well known instructor in social deportment:

Professor of Kissing.

I had the curiosity to call and inquire into this osculatory science. The professor is a quiet little man of declining years, who teaches the art of conversation, how to write letters, and carries on a brisk business in the answer and regret line. He was once a consul to some foreign port, and wears distinguishing badges of past office.

"Yes, I teach kissing," he said; "it is a very necessary accomplishment. I teach the kiss active and the kiss passive; the kiss social and the kiss polite. I will show you my method."

Thereupon the professor touched a bell and two rather pretty girls, neatly dressed, entered his little parlor.

"Miriam and Fanny, the school kiss."

The young ladies turned toward each other, held out hands, and bobbing forward pecked like little birds at each other's cheek.

"Now the good-by kiss."

This was a slower and more solemn event. There was no smack, but they lingered a moment, saluting each other as the cheek as before.

"Do you teach the lover's kiss?"

"I do, and have much success. My son practices with his sister. I have introduced the eye kiss, which is much more serviceable and proper than his lip kiss. The accepted lover kisses the betrothed on the eye lids. It is very affectionate and poetical."

I found that the old man taught stage kissing. It was rather tame and colorless, being a mere mechanical salute with closed lips. He assured me that few people knew how to kiss well; that it was a most neglected branch of social education, and that his method was so correct that strangers could salute each other with a kiss with perfect propriety. Those who have seen kissing on a public promenade, at depots and in cars, will be pleased to know that the smack is obsolete, and that a school of kissing will not allow its pupils to make spectacles of themselves in public.—Cor. Detroit Free Press.

Stingy.

Squire Springer was reputed to be the very stingy man on all Great Forks prairie. The Kansas people are very liberal and free handed, but Squire Springer had the name of being "tight as the skin on a green persimmon."

"It makes his mouth pucker just to see a copper cent," added his neighbor, Mrs. Higgins, one day, when she had given voice to this opinion.

"Why, it's a fact," she went on, "that once I went over to borrow a cup of yeast of Mrs. Springer, and out comes the old squire into the kitchen to see what I wanted just as she was pouring out the yeast.

"'Yeast cost money, Mrs. Higgins,' said he. 'Hops cost money.'

"Well, I was so mad at that that I just pulled out my pocketbook. 'I'm able and willing to pay for the yeast,' said I.

"'It cost full two cents to buy it of folks in the yeast trade.'

"Then Mrs. Springer got awful red in the face, but that old skinflint actually took my two cent piece and put it into his pocket. Then he took it out and looked at it, kind of 'fectionate, and rubbed it, and looked at it again. Finally he handed it to his wife.

"'There, Maria,' said he. 'You was saying you wanted some spending money to buy a few needles with, and that buys you quite a few,' said he.

Why Barons Become Waiters.

The settled foreigner who has lost all his money is in most cases a German or a Frenchman. They drift to this country. They have no trade, or if they do they will not work at it, and as the position of waiter is a comparatively easy one it possesses for them many attractions. First, on working in a hotel or club they usually obtain about the same food as the persons they serve. Then they are, in a great many instances, enabled to sleep where they work. In most first class hotels they come in contact with congenial people. When a man dines he is usually in good humor, and when he finds he has to enter an intelligent man he generally condescends to talk to him.

Many of the representative families of Europe have connections who hold positions as waiters in this country. They are delightfully incompetent, not knowing the first thing about serving.—Philadelphia Times.

A Curious Pipe.

One of the most curious pipes in New York was made of wood cut from the Forests of Italy. Two shepherds spent their leisure during two years in its production. Hunting scenes are elaborately carved on the bowl and stem with life like figures of deer and game. It was brought over to this country and is now the property of a German man whose office on Broadway is often crowded by friends anxious to see the wonder. It is about as large as the famous briar pipe of Gen. Sullivan, whose bowl, representing a brave in fighting attitude, was given to about every man in the army of the Potomac.—New York Sun.

Beauty Has Last Thought.

My wife and I were both awakened at 5 o'clock in the morning by what for the moment we imagined to be a high wind, but the next instant we felt the house sway from side to side so violently that we were nearly thrown out of bed. I cried to my wife, "It's an earthquake!" But she made no answer; her head was buried in the pillows, in the hope, as she afterward told me, of dying with her features unmutilated.—Macmillan's Magazine.

GEN. MIDDLETON.

GEN. MIDDLETON, remarks the London Advertiser, is apparently indifferent to the censure of parliament so long as the Ottawa Government stands by him. Talking to a reporter on the subject recently, Gen. MIDDLETON said, that he had not been requested to resign on account of alleged looting of furs; was on the best of terms with Sir ADOLPH CARON and had not been ordered to refund money to the extent of the value of the furs or resign. "That settles it," declares the Advertiser, "What matters parliamentary censure if the individual censured is not compelled to make restitution." The fact of the matter is, however, as subsequent revelations have proved, General MIDDLETON at the worst has only been guilty of indiscretion, and that under ordinary circumstances, that is to say, only that a powerful cabal in Parliament was bent on his destruction, he would have come out of the investigation triumphantly. The mistake of Gen. MIDDLETON is this: He should have made as clean a breast of the affair as his defective memory permitted, and ingenuously and without hesitation offered to make restitution. A frank and unequivocal course would have disarmed his enemies, while the press ever merciful, where mercy is due, would have treated his case with moderation if not actual sympathy. General MIDDLETON, however, being a Tory, underrates the influence of the press, and so, though he may escape paying back the $4000 which was his share of the plunder, he retires to the South of France under a cloud. If Gen. Middleton possessed an ounce of tact to a pound of stubbornness he might have come out of this fur ordeal with flying colors.

MUSIC AND MUSICIANS.

The Westminster Truth, replying to somebody who complained of the unkind treatment "Music and Musicians in Vancouver" have received at the hands of the press, very properly rejoins that they should not be treated with greater consideration than they deserved; that "a real master of music is a being of such excellence that care should be taken to disabuse the 'young idea' of the belief that every man who makes his livelihood by thumping keys or scraping catguts has a claim to that exalted designation."

Newspapers as a rule take no pleasure in criticising professional musicians, while with reference to amateur local talent, they seldom or never attempt it except in terms of praise. They accept the will for the deed and let it go at that. Nevertheless were local musical amateurs intelligently but kindly criticised the effect would be that they would take more pains. Profiting by the errors pointed out in an intelligent criticism they would in time attain a degree of perfection, making it possible for an audience to listen to them with equanimity and delighted approval. The consideration which the press invariably manifests for local musicians, vocal and instrumental, is all wrong. Taking advantage of the understood fact that the local press will considerately omit to mention that so and so's voice is an indifferently good one, that the execution was abominable and that the selection was execrable, they allow their love of publicity to get the better often times of their private judgment. The weak point with most local vocalists is, that they are faddists, that is to say, having taken a fancy to a song they will persist in singing it whether it is adapted to their voices or not. The success of a song depends on its execution. Again, with regard to concerts, the mistake is frequently made of including songs in the programme which only an audience of cultured musicians can appreciate. Local concert managers should remember that they have to depend on Tom, Dick and Harry for an audience, and that the chances are none of these gentlemen are sufficiently cultured to be able to appreciate classical selections. We would like to see one concert given in this city in which the "old masters" were not resurrected. This affectation, however, of the "old masters" usually meets its reward—a slim house.

WHAT FRANCE WANTS.

The equivalent demanded by France for the surrender of her Newfoundland fisheries is a modest one. She is willing, as the rumor goes, to exchange her fishery rights for the privilege of assuming absolute control over Siam and Madagascar. Siam has an area of 280,350 square miles, a population of from 4,000,000 to 6,000,000 and a revenue of £2,000,000. The proximity of Madagascar to Tonquin gives it value in the eyes of France. Madagascar, the third largest island in the world, contains an area nearly double that of Great Britain and Ireland, and has a population of between 3,000,000 and 4,000,000. It has been an object of French desire, but attempts at conquest have not been successful. The islets of St. Marie and Nosibe have been in the possession of France since 1821 and 1840, respectively, and by the treaty of 1885, which terminated her latest attempt at conquest, she obtained the port of Diego Surrez as a naval station. A war indemnity of £400,000 was paid by the Malagasy Government, but they refused to admit the claims of France to a protectorate. The demand of France is a modest one, indeed. England, we imagine, will gladly concede French prestige in Madagascar that the Newfoundlanders shall have the monopoly of the lobster catch.

A NEW YORK MOVEMENT.

Leading New York journals, says the San Francisco Call, are devoting a good deal of space to the non-partisan movement recently inaugurated in that city. The conviction is general in political circles that it will not amount to much, but the politicians, nevertheless, keep a wary eye upon it. An objection is made in some quarters that there are too many clergymen in it. Clergymen, it is urged, are not practical in their methods and are too much accustomed to having things their own way in church matters to be good fighters. It will be admitted, however, that in the management of their own business affairs the average clergyman is not deficient in ability. What a movement of this nature wants is character. It must inspire the mass of voters with confidence in its integrity of purpose. It would be godsend if this movement could be made to extend beyond the confines of New York. The tyranny of party has no more to recommend it than the tyranny of despots. We shall have some faith in the perpetuity of democratic institutions when the press of the country can unite in a discussion of public measures from a non-partisan standpoint. The experience of the last few years is conclusive that the best interests of state are not inseparably interwoven with any particular party.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

At the banquet given by the National Liberal Club in honor of PARNELL's forty-fourth birthday, JUSTIN MCCARTHY presiding, PARNELL expatiated on the policy of the Irish party, and referring to the recent absence of the Irish members when the Government was nearly defeated excused them. He said it was as much a surprise to the Irish party as to the Government. It would be useless to issue a whip, because it was known that the government opened all Irish members' letters and one whip would thus have defeated its own object. It should appear that in this charge we have a case of libel. PARNELL had as well accuse the Government of being a gang of pickpockets as to charge them with rifling the mails.

"O'CONNOR's defeat was anticipated in Toronto," says the Toronto World. "That he did a plucky thing in going to Australia is without a doubt—that he did a wise thing is open to question. HANLAN certainly did a foolish thing when he carried the championship to Australia and left it there. Had he stood within his rights and named Toronto Bay as the championship course, as by all sporting law he was entitled to do, he might still have been champion of the world. But he carried the championship to the antipodes, and there it is likely to stay during the present generation of oarsmen." Our opinion may not be worth much, but we question whether any man born and raised in the north temperate zone, however superior his qualities as an oarsman or an athlete generally, stands any chance of winning in Australia. The climate of that country is enervating to the native of the States and Canada, nor does a year's residence in the country help matters. The north temperate zone man who carries away the sculling championship from Australia will have to be a mighty good man indeed.

The Montreal Herald, ever vigilant in the matter of free trade, quotes the London Canadian Gazette in relation to British trade with Canada. Here they are: The exports from Great Britain to this country for the month of May were £364,161, against £434,614 in the same month of 1889, and for the five months the exports were £1,771,639, against £2,036,263 in the corresponding five months of last year. This shows a falling off, for the month of May, of £70,453 and for the five months of £264,624. The decreases are chiefly in cotton and iron manufactures. The imports from Canada into Great Britain made a very much better showing, the increase in the month of May being £56,753, and for the five months £105,055. The net decline in the trade between the two countries, therefore, is £16,720 for May, and for the five months £127,569, or $81,426 and $619,061 respectively. The increases are chiefly in live stock and fish, while in articles of food and lumber there is a falling off. "Our National Policy tariff," comments the Herald, "is getting in its work pretty effectively in discriminating against and destroying our trade with great Britain. The political godfathers of that bantling assured us it would have the contrary effect. Explanations are in order."

"Gentlemen," said VON MOLTKE in his speech in the Reichstag in advocacy of the German Army Bill, "if the war which has hung over our heads like the sword of Damocles for more than ten years past ever breaks out its duration, and end cannot be foreseen. The greatest powers of Europe, armed as they have never been armed before, will then stand face to face. No one of them can be shattered in one or two campaigns so completely as to confess itself beaten and conclude peace on hard terms or as not to recover after a year or so, perhaps to renew the conflict. Woe to him who is the first to apply the torch to the magazine. When such mighty issues are at stake the money question becomes a secondary consideration, and every pecuniary sacrifice seems justified at the outset." Whence come these issues? Why should such issues exist? Why are menaces of this kind permitted to hang over Europe? It seems to us that issues which can only be maintained by armed men have little justification on moral grounds. Consistency would seem to require that an effort be made to settle these issues by arbitration instead of gun powder. With regard to these mighty issues on which VON MOLTKE lays so much stress, instead of advocating their maintenance at the point of the bayonet, he would make a much better appearance pleading for their peaceful solution on grounds of justice and equity.

THE POLICE REGULATIONS AND GAMBLING.

TO THE EDITOR,—I have been unable at an earlier date to lay my hands on a copy of the police regulations referred to by Mayor Grant in a recent communication to you. This fact must plead as my excuse for failing to notice his Worship's letter sooner.

The Mayor in the letter referred to, said that the police regulations—which were drawn by a committee of which I was chairman—forbid a policeman entering a saloon while on duty, and to the existence of these regulations he attributed the failure of the police to suppress gambling in this city.

In the copy before me I find that the mayor (no doubt unintentionally) has misquoted the rule. No rule so manifestly absurd and ridiculous is in existence, unless the regulations as passed by the council of 1886 have been since amended. No. 1 is the only rule that deals with policemen entering saloons. Among other things it says:

"They (the policemen) are prohibited from entering saloons day or night while on patrol duty, except when called in to prevent a felony or misdemeanor, or to arrest an offender."

The italics are mine. Patroling is only part of a policeman's obligation to the public. When he is not on patrol duty he is not prohibited from entering saloons; and even when patroling he may enter, if called on, to prevent a felony or a "misdemeanor." Gambling is a misdemeanor, so if the Mayor, or Superintendent, or Sergeant of Police, or any citizen, should say to a policeman who is walking his beat, "I call on you to enter the saloon and arrest the inmates who are engaged in gambling," there is nothing in the rule to prevent him going. In fact, he is bound to go. This rule was made by the police committee after careful and anxious thought. I feel sure that if correctly read and quoted, it is unassailable; and if put in force it will be found workable. Previous to the adoption of the police regulations in 1886, there were none worthy of the name, and policemen were found lounging in saloons when they should have been on their beats.

While I am on this subject I may be permitted to quote rule X. from the same book. It says—

"A constable shall note all public places in which he has reason to believe that gambling is carried on, or where suspicious characters resort, and to report the same to the Superintendent, in writing, for his action, taking care to keep a copy of his report."

Has rule X. been observed? If so, how many reports are in the Superintendent's hands, and if any, what action has he taken?

Under the head, "Duties of the Superintendent of Police," rule 1. says:—

"It shall be the duty of the Superintendent of police to examine well into the moral character of the men composing his force; to see that all orders are strictly enforced and the regulations governing the force complied with. If he has reason to believe that a constable neglects his duty in failing to report disorderly houses and places where gambling is practiced, * * * he shall immediately report him to the Mayor and police committee."

I hope I shall not be deemed impertinent when I ask how many constables have been reported to the Mayor and police committee by the Superintendent of police for failure to observe the requirements of this rule?

There is nothing in the regulations which prevents the Superintendent of police entering saloons at any time, whether in the discharge of his duty or not. The committee purposely refrained from placing any restrictions on that officer.

I have neither the time nor the desire to engage in the crusade against gambling, but I cannot help expressing the hope that the agitation will be productive of good and that Alderman Wilson's will not be the only voice raised at the council board against a vice that is drawing many of our young men to destruction. D. W. HIGGINS.

POETRY AND REPORTERS AND NATIONAL SONGS.

TO THE EDITOR:—Since "Reporter" practically agrees with me in my criticism of the "Land of the Maple Leaf," save in the matter of the poetic capabilities of the reportorial guild, I might well decline a rejoinder. It is not opportune that the columns of a newspaper should be burdened with a critical essay on what Reporters are capable of in a literary way and what they are not. Still, as I am a little inclined to rest under the imputation of lacking appreciation of reporters, as exemplars of intellectual force, it is just as well that I attempt to set myself right, give reporters to understand that I value them at their full worth. I said that the song of the "Maple Leaf" as a poetical production "would discredit a reporter." I did not intend this remark as a reflection upon the intellectual status of that much abused functionary of the press. The illustration was based on the knowledge of the fact that poets are born, not made, and further that persons of the poetic temperament are constitutionally incapable of making good reporters. The quality of temperament which constitutes the reportorial faculty is the antithesis of the poetic faculty. The attributes of the true reporter are those of the detective. He may be an incipient Byron or Horace Greely, but the chances are he is not. The very virtues which qualify him for reporting afford the strongest evidence of his inability to court the muses successfully. In speaking of reporters we cannot allude to them as possible poets and all that sort of thing. We must presume them to be practical men, disinclined from the very nature of their being to the higher intellectual flights. If they were not practical men they would not be reporters. Now the author of "Land of the Maple Leaf" affects, questionably, to be a poet. His effort, however, proves that he is not. He is not even a rhetortician. Is it, then, a reflection on the reporting fraternity to say, assuming as I have just pointed out, that reporters being practical men cannot be poets, that such a production would discredit a reporter? It is not a difficult feat to produce rhymed matter. All those who have attended debating societies, in conjunction with which a so-called newspaper was published, must have noted the preponderance of alleged poetical contributions over prose. Among young people of literary tastes four out of five affect what they fondly call poetry. But is it poetry? There is a vast difference between meritorious rhyme and true poetry even. Poetry is something which I have never yet seen satisfactorially defined. Poetry must be felt.

On Fame's eternal camping ground,
Their silent tents are spread;
While Glory guards with solemn round
The bivouac of the dead.

This is poetry, but the verse is said to be rhetorically imperfect. But that makes no difference. The heart is touched, the soul warmed not by the words themselves, but by the sentiments they convey, and so when the critic jumps up and complains of a violation of the law of rhetoric we laugh at him. True poetry is to the reader what woman is to the man who is in love with her. The former may not be grammatically and rhetorically accurate, but it is poetry for all. The latter may not be strictly beautiful. She may have a pug nose, but she has that about her which "strikes the chord that vibrates," as Mr. Guppy would say. The sense of the artistic which is an acquired quality is overcome by the soul having been disturbed to its inmost depths. But of the "Land of the Maple Leaf," if I may continue my digression, Canada is made to shine by the reflected light of England's glory. The flavor of the thing is "English you know." I give place to none in admiration of England, but I contend that a song to be national must have the flavor of the soil, must specifically relate to something heroic or epochal of the environment from which it sprang. Colonies in the very nature of things cannot have a national song. Should Canada evolve a national song it would be treason. Canada can never have a truly national song until after having become an independent state. But I started in to put myself right with "Reporter." I think that when he comes to study the question of reporters vs. poetry he will find that I did not intend anything disparaging to the profession. He may in fact, if he chooses to look at it in other than a factious light be able to extract a compliment from it. And another thing. I would call "Reporter's" attention to. There is as a wide gulf between reporting and literature as there is between rhyme and poetry. I would impress upon "Reporter's" mind that the fact of his being a reporter, or for that matter a journalist, if he prefers the latter term, is no proof of his being a litterateur. "Reporter" complains that reporters are despised. Here he is at fault, but if such is the case what is the cause of it? Reporters are regarded mere news mongerers, and as such are not supposed to possess the qualities which distinguish the litterateur. But I need not discuss the subject further. Let "Reporter" ponder well what constitutes a poet, let him remember that as a mere reporter he is not entitled to the distinguished consideration which is accorded to litterateur.

The Icarus Court-Martial.

The Naval and Military Record says: Dr. Johnson once said, "There is nothing more likely to betray a man into absurdity than condescension." It may be matter for speculation whether the aphorism was true or not at the time of utterance, but that it is pertinent in the present day very few will be found to deny. We fear the Broad Arrow's comments re the Icarus court-martial will place the writer thereof in a prominent position in the category of those who condescend. With the verdict of that court—as a result of conscientious deliberation on the part of its members—we are not deeply concerned; but we cannot refrain from making a comparison between the punishment inflicted in the one case, and what would most likely have been the award had Commander Annesley followed the established custom of the service and placed the Writer Dean under arrest until the ship arrived at a port where a court-martial could have been convened. Three calendar months' imprisonment may be summarily awarded for such an offence as that charged against the man, and who that has watched the proceedings of naval court-martial can doubt that he would have been sentenced to that punishment at least? It would be of interest to know by what process of reasoning our contemporary assumes that an officer in the position of Commander Annesley would press to have his indictment made more disagreeable. It would be impossible to derive any benefit from such a course, even were the specific charges not proved, while it would be decidedly to his interests to let as many charges as possible remain in abeyance. To err is human, and at critical periods when time is wanted for reflection, it is quite possible to take a momentary step which will take years to retrace; but with a full appreciation of his own interest, and the benefit of best advice at command, it is difficult to conceive of any individual possessing a superabundance of humanity such as that indicated by the assumed request of the officer in question. That the Admiralty took legal opinion on the case before placing the officer on trial there can be no doubt, and that they also acted in a judicial manner we are quite willing to believe; but it is to this condition of naval jurisprudence, as well as its results, that we take objection.

The case in point is admirably typical of the state of discipline as it exists in our navy at the present day. Who with a knowledge of the interior economy of one of our ships of war would speak of No. 10 A as a mild correction? Or who having but a casual acquaintance with the several evolutions performed at sea, would venture to assert that the language used when giving an order is confined to the necessary words of command, or that the language is couched in terms likely to encourage men to perform their duty with accuracy, or such as would indicate a spirit of kindliness and thoughtfulness for the humblest among the crew? It is indisputable that phrases are common which, if applied to the most miserable specimens of mankind on shore, would provoke prompt retaliation. To appeal against unjustifiable conduct on the part of a superior is more likely to damage the appellant than the offender, and it is only when matters arrived at such a deplorable crisis as that on board the Icarus that the public become aware of the real state of affairs. As we before intimated, the time has fully arrived when a reconstruction of the regulations which govern the conduct of officers and men is imperative; and, delicate though the task may be, it will be our aim to introduce a practical reform, which, while effectually correcting abuse, shall never be likely to deteriorate into a transfer of power.

When Jay Gould was a struggling young surveyor, with hardly one cent to rub against another, he stamped his initials and the date on a copper cent and put it in circulation. Last week Mr. Gould received some pennies in change on a street car, and on looking them over, he found the coin he had stamped was not among them.

SUDDEN DEATH.

J. M. Baldwin Falls Dead in the Steam Laundry.

J. M. Baldwin, who a few days ago arrived in the city from Seattle to take charge of the Queen City Steam Laundry, died at the laundry yesterday evening of concussion of the brain, caused by a fall while in a fit. The unfortunate man was counting clothes about three o'clock with Chas. Rolland, when he suddenly fell heavily to the floor in a fit. Dr. Duncan was immediately called and with Dr. Compton did everything possible to save his life, but without avail, his death occurring three hours from the time of his falling. The deceased was about 34 years of age and although having been here only a few days he had already made many friends and gained the confidence of his employers. He formerly belonged to Los Angeles, California, where his parents live. He had good recommendations from different firms on the coast. His father was telegraphed to and the funeral will not take place until an answer is received. The body was taken to Hayward's undertaking rooms where it now lies awaiting word from his friends.

NORTH SAANICH SCHOOL.

The Midsummer Examination—Promotions, Prize Winners, Etc.

The midsummer examination of the above school was held on the 26th ult., in the presence of trustees, parents and visitors. The pupils, numbering fifty, were examined by the teacher, Mr. Angus B. Addresses were given by the Rev. F. Granville Christmas and Mr. McLennan. Several special prizes were competed for, and in most cases the contest was very close. This important school was never in so prosperous a condition and under the management of its present efficient teacher, will speak for itself in the near future.

Will Take his Place.

G. D. Gardsen, formerly of the Seattle laundry, arrived over by the Kingston last evening to take the place of the unfortunate young man J. M. Baldwin, as foreman of the steam laundry. On account of the unfortunate death, the clothes at present in hand may be a little late, but everything will be done to have them delivered on time.

He Had to Walk.

Yesterday afternoon a gentleman who lives at Metchosin had his horse and wagon stolen from outside the Caledonian picnic grounds while he was witnessing the sports. Nothing can be heard as to where they took the horse, but up to this afternoon he had not been recovered, although the young man who took it is known to be around town, and if the animal does not soon turn up he will very likely figure in the courts shortly.

Arrived.

Curling, tongs and lamps, ladies penknives, scissors, etc. and a full line of shaving materials at M. & H. A. Fox's, 78 Government street.

CANADA'S BIRTHDAY.

DOMINION DAY AND HOW IT WAS CELEBRATED.

The Excursion to Vancouver and the Procession there—The Sons of Merrie England as Loyal Canucks—Winners in the Games—The Sunday Schools, etc.

Dominion Day is not made so much of in Victoria as in some other cities, but at the same time those that do celebrate it make up for the apathy of the rest, and yesterday even those who are not inclined to take part in celebrations were almost forced to leave the house on account of the perfectness of the day. Although it was very warm the breeze from across the Olympics, which makes Victoria's weather so delightful, had a cooling effect. On towards eight o'clock in the morning people began moving towards the different public or private picnic grounds, some going by train to Langford, some to St. George's picnic and some to the Gorge and other pleasure resorts.

ST. GEORGE'S PICNIC.

Sons of England Join in the Birth of the Greater Britain.

The members of the St. George's Society had made up their minds to beat all their previous records of picnics, and it would not be out of the way to say that they succeeded admirably yesterday. The grounds were decorated with bunting and in the evening were illuminated with electric lights and Chinese lanterns.

Although the sports were advertised to commence at 1 o'clock sharp, it was after two before a start was made, but the people were not impatient as the music supplied by the Queen City band helped them to pass away the time. The sports were keenly contested in spite of the absence of some of Victoria's best athletes at Vancouver. The committee took good care that everybody enjoyed themselves and no doubt they all did. The sporting committee were: Starter—J. Braden; referee, G. Fairbrother; judges, J. Dewsnap, W. Harrison, G. Thomson, T. Flewin.

Running long jump—1st W. E. Harrison, 2nd E. L. Harrison.

Hop step and jump—1st W. E. Harrison, 38 ft. 8 in.; 2nd E. L. Harrison, 38 ft. 5 in.

9. Running race, twice round the ring, for boys under 15, handicapped. For sons of members only. 1st prize, Jubilee Double Sovereign, presented by J. H. Lovell, Esq.; 2nd prize, stem Winding watch, presented by C. E. Redfern Esq. 1st, H. Hepworth; 2nd, Whitley.

10. Running race, 125 yards, for championship of British Columbia. Open to all comers. Prize, championship medal, won by W. McDowell.

12. Hurdle race, twice round the ring. 1st, Sergt. Brimstone; 2nd, E. L. Harrison.

13. Sack race, once round the ring. 1st, R. Elliott; 2nd, W. Colwall.

14. Wrestling match. Prize, $15. Westmoreland and Cumberland style. Single bouts; one throw. Final heat best 2 of 3. Won by J. Watson.

15. Tug of war, won by a team captained by J. Lorrimer.

16. Navy and army race. 1st, Sergt. Brimstone; 2nd, Private Powell.

After the programme of sports had been successfully carried out, a majority of those present left for town and came back in the evening reinforced for the dance, which commenced at eight o'clock on the spacious platform. Of course the floor could not be expected to be in first class order, but a plane in the hands of a good carpenter would have improved it very much. The music supplied by the Queen City Band was all that could be desired and the dance, under the superintendence of H. A. Levin, Jno. Braden being unavoidably absent, passed off splendidly. A few trips and falls on the rough part of the floor did not mar the pleasure of the victims although it was not at all pleasant to be laughed at by the crowd of spectators. The dance kept up until about midnight, when everybody left for home thoroughly satisfied with their day's outing.

SAANICH PICNIC.

There being so many other attractions, not many Victorians attended the Saanich picnic, and the residents there were left mostly to themselves to celebrate Dominion Day. Those who did attend were splendidly treated and speak in the highest praise of the sociability of the Saanich people. Unlike the Victorians, they danced during the afternoon and stayed at home during the evening, and if a little warmer it was quite as enjoyable.

AT THE GORGE.

The prettiest of Victoria's suburbs was not in the least overlooked on account of the other attractions, and the Arm from Point Ellice to Craigflower was dotted with boats of all kinds, and here and there on the banks many private picnics were enjoyed in the shady groves that line the banks.

NOTES OF THE DAY.

The baseball match at the hill between the Thistles and Nationals was won by the latter with a score of 18 to 8.

A hack owned by W. Lawson came to grief on Wharf street by the hind wheel coming from under the body. No one was hurt.

The cricket match between a team from the Navy and the members of the Victoria Cricket Club who did not go to Westminster, was won by the former at Esquimalt yesterday.

AT VANCOUVER.

The Trip on the Islander—A Hearty Welcome—The Procession, etc.

It was a quarter past five yesterday morning before the steamer Islander left the C. P. N. Co's wharf for Vancouver and although she had been held back for over an hour, the man who is always late was seen wildly rushing down the wharf just as the boat had got fairly out into the stream. As it was behind time the boat did not return for the man, who was last seen wending his way to a saloon where his sorrows might be assuaged in the flowing bowl.

But a goodly crowd was aboard, some three hundred or more, all of whom were bent on a run to Vancouver, there to celebrate in a fitting manner the natal day of the Dominion. The lacrosse boys were out in force, as were the bicyclists and a happy lot they were, all in the best of tempers and all acquainted, thus making the trip a pleasant one.

The weather was simply perfection. Not a ripple on the water disturbed the movement of the magnificent steamer as she swept onward up the straits, passing some of the grandest scenery the brush of painter ever depicted or the pen of poet described, but which has been so often "done" by globe trotters that a repetition of the scenic beauties would be only wearisome. A cloudless sky, illuminated by the brightest of suns, was overhead, and the fresh breeze caused by the motion of the steamer sent a thrill of delight through the excursionists who swarmed the decks. Soon knots of special friends were formed, and with cards or social chat the time flew quickly by, and a trip too short to be wearisome was soon over, and

VANCOUVER WAS REACHED.

Here a right hearty welcome was given by the Vancouver people to the visitors. The terminal city had put on its holiday attire, and very fine she looked. In fact, her winning ways may prove too attractive to many of the visitors, who expressed themselves as agreeably surprised at the splendid reception given them by the hospitable mainlanders. When the passengers landed they were received by members of the reception committee, and the city of Vancouver was literally thrown open to them. The lacrosse boys, with their implements of friendly war, were soon off to the recreation grounds for the match, and the wheelmen, mounted on their steeds of steel, went whirling away in company with others of their own ilk, while those who did not belong to any particular body, but only came to look on, straggled around to see the sights.

The street procession was a great event. Headed by the Vancouver police force and the Nanaimo brass band, the several societies and lodges marched in line, the fire department contingents from Westminster and Nanaimo hose teams, the several trades organizations, the "Darktown Fire Brigade," the latter causing much amusement, His Worship Mayor Oppenheimer and the city council in carriages, together with invited guests.

All the principal streets were paraded, and at noon all hands broke ranks and adjourned for lunch.

The city of Vancouver was decked in holiday attire, the principal streets and business blocks being decorated with flags, evergreens, streamers and mottoes. Hundreds of people thronged the streets. Everybody seemed determined to make high holiday, and well they succeeded. Visitors were welcomed most heartily, and made to feel thoroughly at home

OTHER EVENTS.

While the parade was in progress other events were going forward, chief among them being the regatta and athletic sports, at the recreation grounds. After lunch the Victoria and Vancouver lacrosse teams crossed sticks, and a very exciting and closely contested game followed, each party being cheered on by their friends. The splendid play of Cullen for the Victoria team at times made victory for that side sure, but Woodward of the Vancouver club made extra efforts to retrieve the position lost, and the game, which was hotly fought out from start to finish, resulted in a draw, one to one. The Vancouvers got the first goal, the Victorians the second. The excitement was intense.

Tom Watson won the half-mile running race, D. Gillis the 100-yard flat race and Jimmy Gibbon the boys' race.

The wheelmen's race did not come off on Tuesday and much kicking was done by the Island men.

VANCOUVER ILLUMINED.

A Gorgeous Spectacle on the Harbor Front and in the City.

VANCOUVER, July 2.—The evening illuminations here were very fine. The city was a blaze of light, Chinese lanterns being used in profusion. The new city electric arc lights were on for the first time. There was a grand display of fireworks. Spratt's Ark, moored in the harbor, and hundreds of boats with with lanterns floating on the still dark water produced a beautiful effect. Fifty canoes from the Mission, decorated with thousands of lanterns, in tow of a tug with a band playing was a specially attractive feature. Thousands of people enjoyed the scene, the weather being perfect.

The Behring Sea.

The following telegram has been going the rounds of the United States press:

SAN FRANCISCO, June 28.—It has been learned here that the revenue cutter Corwin will receive orders at Port Townsend to proceed to Behring sea.

It is further learned that the British sloops Daphne and Nymphe, while at Acapulco, received sudden orders to sale for San Francisco and thence to Esquimalt. Their mission, as briefly outlined by an officer, is to see that the Yankees do not ride rough-shod over Her Majesty's subjects in Behring sea. The Nymph sailed for Esquimalt and the Daphne will follow her Sunday.

For Unknown Regions.

A party of Maple Ridge settlers says the Columbian, intend leaving next week on a trip of discovery into the regions lying north and east of the Pitt mountain range, a country of which less is known than the interior of Africa since the explorations of Stanley, Livingston, Baker, Du Chaillot and James. They argue that large valleys must lie in rear of these mountains and it is just possible their discoveries will prove very valuable. Every member of the party is a master in forest-craft, and accustomed to "roughing it" of the most arduous kind.

DRY DOCK NOTES.

Vessels to go in for Repairs—Value of the Dock.

The American steamship Queen of the Pacific, which is due from the north this afternoon, will go into the Esquimalt dry dock for repairs in a few days.

The American steamer Michigan and the British ship Queen Victoria will be docked after the Queen of the Pacific comes out.

H.M.S. Champion is ready to go in also, but it is understood that as there is no necessity for haste in her case that the merchantmen will be served first.

It is interesting to note that the use made of the dock by the Amphion alone has more than paid the Imperial Government for the expenditure made in its construction—amounting to about one-fourth of the total cost. The time the Amphion was in for repairs, was seven months and ten days, which at the regular rates would have cost the owners something like $50,000. At the rates charged in the San Francisco dock the cost would have been $330,000. But leaving this computation out of consideration altogether the fact that the vessel could not have been saved but for the presence of the dock is sufficient to show that it has a great deal more than paid back what the Imperial Government put into it.

This dock which the present ruinous local government bartered away to the Dominion, paid $16,000 last year—the first year—over working expenses.

Bicyclists' Welcome.

The members of the Island Wanderer's Bicycle club are requested to meet at Burn's building, Bastion Square, at 7:30 this evening to meet and welcome the returning champion, Percy Jenns, from Vancouver.

Sentenced to Eighteen Months.

The three Caffier children were up in the Speedy Trials Court to-day before Justice Drake, who sentenced the two oldest ones to 18 months in jail and discharged the younger. His lordship found that by the act he could not send the boys to the reformatory for less than two years and as the Provincial act says that anyone sentenced for two years must go to the penitentiary, he sent them up for 18 months in the common jail whence they can be moved to the reformatory by the Lieut.-Governor in Council.

Burned to the Ground.

Mr. F. G. Strickland, of New Westminster, has received a telegram from Peterborough, Ont., informing him that the moulding shop and pattern department of the William Hamilton Manufacturing Co. of that city had been burned to the ground. Messrs. F. G. Strickland & Co. are the agents in this province of W. Hamilton & Co., and through them heavy orders from the Ross-McLaren Co., the Chemainus Mills and many of the saw milling companies of the Province were placed with the firm in Peterborough.

More Light in Nanaimo.

The industry of electric lighting has reached the Black Diamond city, and Nanaimo was given the service for the first time on Monday last, when the plant put in through the enterprise of Mr. Alexander Shaw was set in motion. The apparatus consists of a 500 light dynamo (incandescent) of the Ball pattern, manufactured by the Ball Co., of Toronto, R. B. McMicking, Western agent, and is the first of the kind operated in this northwest, and a 40 H. P. Armington & Sims engine, boiler, etc. Everything worked smoothly, and there is reason to believe that the enterprise will prove a boon to the citizens, who are to be congratulated upon the push of one of their own number.

Wellington Mail Service.

A correspondent at Wellington writes to us as follows about the mail service at that place: "Within the last ten days or so there has been some change in the delivery of the mail here, through as I understand an official order, which gives us here the delivery of mail twenty-four hours later than ever. That is your papers of the Monday evening, which I presume is mailed in time to be sent up on Tuesday morning, and should be delivered here on Tuesday about 2 p. m. is now detained at Nanaimo and is only sent through on the next day, Wednesday, taking almost 36 hours for the paper to get here and ready for delivery." We are sure that we have only to call the attention of Post Office Inspector Fletcher to this matter to have it rectified. No doubt the delay in delivering the TIMES was due to some irregularity, or mistake, which can easily be rectified.

False Prophets.

Intelligence from Egypt indicates that the followers of El Mahdi are beginning to question his inspiration as a prophet. The reason given for this decline in faith are such as would appeal to the average Caucasian understanding. One is that the Mahdi has permitted a famine to spread itself over the land. Another is the cruel methods by which he seeks to hold his unwilling followers true to his cause. If he was a true prophet he would have foretold the famine and provided against it. And if he possessed any attribute of divine power he would inspire his followers with a willingness to die for him.

CAMERON'S BID FOR BUSINESS,

ARE YOU WILLING to be convinced that you may be wasting money? Or are you like the old lady who was willing to be convinced, but would like to see the person who could convince her?

TO PAY THE PRICES others ask is simply rank nonsense. It is paying a premium to greediness and emptying your purse to fill pockets bulging with plunder.

THAT OTHER ASK two prices is no reason why you should pay more than one, or that you should suppose that the two-price piratical profit plan is associated with every business.

WHEN YOU CAN come into our store, handle our goods, compare them in price and quality, and prove to your own satisfaction that we are living up to our claim of low-price dealing, why don't you come?

GET LOWER PRICES and save money. That's the idea. You can get them. If no other store offers them our store does. Our war cry is "low prices." That's our bid for business.

AT OUR STORE you will find as choice a display as you ever looked on. Nothing that belongs to a fine stock is missing—except the usual exorbitant prices. Our prices are very low.
